RUTH BURGESS

Ruth Burgess is an established Sydney printmaker who identifies three key factors as instrumental in her path as an artist. Her explorations in the art of woodcut, her nine visits to China where she developed a method of hand printed woodcuts inspired by the Japanese post war creative printmakers using Japanese papers, and her love of the Australian forest. In the 1950s she studied painting with Desiderius Orban, graduated from Sydney University in Arts/Music, and continued her study of musical composition at the Paris Conservatoire. In the mid 1970s Burgess studied woodcut medium for three years at Workshop Arts Centre, Willoughby and in 1979 established her own printmaking studio.

In 1988 Burgess was sent to China by the Print Council of Australia and the Department of Foreign Affairs to a woodcut symposium in Heilonjiang, North East China. She met woodcut artists, art historians, teachers and printmakers from all over China and these contacts enabled the purchase of significant works for major Australian art galleries as well as seed plans for her future travels and exhibitions. During these travels in China she worked with the Woodcut Association of eight different provinces organising exchanges with Australia and interacting with the woodcut artists. Her prints are based on a spiritual rather than pictorial approach which evolved from her experience of the Chinese approach to landscape.

From 1984 to 1995 Burgess worked consistently in Australia and overseas. From 1984-93 she taught woodcut printmaking at the Workshop Arts Centre, Willoughby; in 1987 worked at Studio Camnitzer, Lucca, and Studio Reparata, Florence, Italy; received three separate Australia China Council Grants to China; was the Artist in Residence at several Fine Arts Academies in China and was a guest lecturer for the Art Gallery of NSW, Macquarie University and the Works on Paper Fair.

As an advocate for printmaking, Burgess has contributed to symposiums, exhibitions and print exchanges and maintained a steady exhibition program of her work. For The Music of the Planets Ruth Burgess states:

I was visually inspired by the messages from the Hubble telescope and the recent space craft such as Voyager sending back to earth extraordinary images, and the wonders always evolving in the Milky Way. As I travelled through these images in 2019 and through the earthly restrictions of 2020, I have experienced one of the most productive periods of my work as an artist and I have been able to source techniques and experience from my many years as a printmaker.
